

PTA Council & PAUSD Guidelines for Sustainable School Events

Help reinforce the environmental messages we teach our children by making an effort to reduce, reuse, compost, and recycle during school events. Here are some tips to help, and they help save money, too.

First, use leftover party supplies (plates, cups, napkins, etc.) from previous years before buying more. Then...

Napkins

- When you can, have students put their snacks on a napkin instead of a plate.
- Bonus: all napkins are compostable, so this is a great place for color, themes, etc.

Plates

- If you need plates, choose paper plates because they can go in the compost.
- The old-fashioned thin, plain, non-shiny white paper plates are a great, affordable option!

Utensils

- Plan for snacks that are finger foods and don't require forks or spoons.
- If you need utensils, select reusable or compostable options.
- Plastic utensils are not recyclable. Please keep them out of the recycle bins.

Cups

- Reusable cups are best, so choose them when possible.
- Paper cups are the second-best choice because they are compostable.
- Non-Styrofoam plastic cups can be recycled.
- To reduce waste, avoid individual single-use beverage containers (e.g., bottled water, juice boxes).

Tablecloths

- Avoid disposable plastic tablecloths. They are not recyclable or compostable.
- Reusable tablecloths are a good investment because they can be saved and used for lots of events.

How to dispose of party supplies in the school waste bins after the party:

Compost (best choices)	food, napkins, paper plates, paper cups, and utensils and cups marked compostable
Recycle (good choices)	aluminum foil, plastic cups (not Styrofoam), paper packaging (e.g. cracker boxes), rigid plastic containers (plastic jugs)
Landfill (avoid!)	plastic utensils, plastic plates, disposable tablecloths, plastic or mixed material wrappers, Styrofoam, juice boxes

If you're considering buying reusable party supplies for your event, please let Rebecca Navarro, PAUSD district Sustainability Program Manager know.
